What are Community Connectors?

HALE Community Connectors work with adults who need some support and encouragement to access community activities.

Many of the people we work with would like to make new friends or find out about local activities. They may have suffered a bereavement, had a new baby, are struggling with a medical condition or have moved to a new neighbourhood.

Perhaps they know that getting out of the house and meeting people would be the best thing for them but find it hard to take the first step, or are unsure about where to go to meet others.

Community Connectors How does it work?

A HALE Community Connector will arrange to meet you at your house or another convenient location to talk about what kind of support would be helpful.

The Community Connector will find out about social activities that would interest you and then go with you until you feel confident enough to attend on your own.

The Community Connector will be able to meet with clients between 6 and 8 times.

The service is FREE.
